Provider Organizations for Substance Use Disorder Services

This booklet includes a list of organizations in our area that provide services for substance use disorders - and what services they are licensed to provide. This information can also be found on the Region 10 website at www.region10pihp.org. You may choose the provider you prefer.

Some services, such as intensive outpatient, methadone, sub-acute detox and residential, require a referral and may have waiting lists.

For definitions of outpatient, intensive outpatient, methadone, sub-acute detox and residential services, see page 33-34 in the Customer Handbook. Definitions of prevention and women’s specialty services follow:

Prevention Services include efforts:
- To make communities better able to reduce the number of people with substance use disorders;
- To make communities better able to provide services for substance use disorders;
- To educate the community about substance use disorders; and
- To identify people who may be likely to develop a substance use disorder and refer them to a program for education, such as assistance programs for students or employees and education programs for those caught driving under the influence.

Specialty Women’s Services refer to substance use disorder treatment programs for women who are pregnant, who have children, or women working toward regaining custody of their children. The programs include primary medical treatment, child care, referral to primary pediatric care, and other therapeutic interventions for mother and child, such as issues of relationships, sexual and physical abuse, parenting and developmental issues. The services include case management and transportation.
